The image shows a large industrial facility, likely a shipyard or a manufacturing plant. In the foreground and middle ground, there are several large, blue, vertical panels or doors. These panels are part of a larger structure, possibly a hull or a large container. Above the panels, there are yellow overhead cranes. The ceiling is high and has a complex structure with many lights. In the background, more of the facility is visible, including more panels and cranes. A yellow and black striped caution tape is visible on the left side. A yellow metal frame with various tools and equipment is in the foreground on the right. A person in a red shirt and white hard hat is visible in the background on the right.

SUSTAINABILITY

SIAO applies efforts that go beyond what may be required or expected by regulators or environmental protection groups. We do believe we exist to make a difference in our community and therefore, our results are measured by the positive impacts we achieve.

SIÃO takes pride in giving back to the local communities. Over the past 18 years, we have established and contributed to many home centres targeting both the underprivileged and elderly. We have also sponsored numerous environmental and social endeavors.
